TELLS OF INTERVIEW

Witness Declares Dr. Chancellor Correctly Quoted.

CRITICISED JUDGE ANDERSON

Newspaper Man Called as Witness in School Board's Trial of Superintendent Over Latter's Failure to Appear Because of Illness—Mrs. Mussey and Mr. Cox Called.

The trial of Dr. William E. Chancellor, superintendent of schools, on charges preferred by the board of education will not be completed before Monday. It is possible that a session of the board will be held on Monday evening, following the one of that afternoon, in order that the trial may be brought to as speedy a conclusion as possible.

The hearing yesterday morning was devoid of incident, and only a few witnesses were examined, on account of the illness of the defendant, Dr. Chancellor. The only clash that occurred was when the physician's certificate, showing the illness of the accused man, was presented to the board for consideration. Attorney McNamara, for the board, suggested that all speed possible should be given in this hearing. Creed M. Fulton, attorney for Dr. Chancellor, seemed to believe that this was an implication on himself and the superintendent, and resented it. Attorney McNamara said, however, that no such implication was meant, and the trial sagged back into its old quiet tone.

Says Chancellor Indorsed Interview

The first witness called was Ralph A. Graves, a local newspaper man. Mr. Graves was questioned concerning an interview given by Dr. Chancellor to one of the reporters employed by his paper. Mr. Graves told of reading the interview to Dr. Chancellor over the telephone, and said that the interview—a criticism of Judge Anderson for his ruling in a school case—had been confirmed by Dr. Chancellor.

Minutes of Meeting Correct.

Mrs. Mussey testified that the wording of the minutes in question was substantially correct. She said that all the questions made at the time were placed on record in those proceedings. She was then asked why the board had not at once investigated the matter, but said that the board would have to answer, not she.

W. V. Cox, also a member of the board, was the last witness called. Mr. Cox was questioned as to the promise alleged to have been made by Dr. Chancellor to be present at the Bruce investigation. Mr. Cox said that Dr. Chancellor had so promised. On cross-examination he was asked if Dr. Chancellor had not understood from Capt. Oyster that he would not be a witness, but merely a spectator.

Mr. Cox answered by saying that the superintendent had not been given "a bill of exceptions." Mr. Cox afterward admitted that the superintendent would likely have construed from the remarks made to him by Capt. Oyster to the effect that he would not be called upon for testimony.

PRESIDENT GREETES EZRA.

Oregon Ox-team Tourist Calls at the White House.

President Roosevelt yesterday left his office at the White House for a few minutes, and, hatless, with hands in pockets, inspected the ox team and cart driven to Washington from the State of Washington by Ezra Meeker. Meeker showed how to navigate his craft up and down Executive avenue and incidentally pleaded with the President for monuments to the heroes who blazed the trail to the Pacific Coast, and for the building of a concrete trail leading across the country. The first proposition the President is said to have approved.

Meeker, who was once known as the "hop king" because of the wealth acquired in growing hops in the Puyallup region, is an old man, with a long white beard, and as healthy as any one in the world, according to his own story. He drove his team here to ask the President to consider his proposition. As he was leaving the White House Representative Needham came in and asked the President to be introduced.

"I was born in a prairie schooner," said Mr. Needham, "and I would like to know Meeker."

After being photographed, Meeker fully steered his ox cart team to Fourteenth street and New York avenue, where for a couple of hours people passing had a chance to inspect the outfit and to buy souvenir printed accounts of the long journey from the "Webfoot" State.
